The Criminal Justice Environment

For many, interaction with a courthouse or police station is fleeting. For others, it's a day at the office. For others still, it's a stressful and anxiety-provoking experience. As designers, we are tasked with creating lighting that imbues a sense of calm and respect while also considering the visual comfort of those who work in the space. Regardless of whether this is a courthouse, a detention center or a police station, it is important that the lighting supports the facility as a safe, secure, humane and dignified environment for visitors, inmates and staff.

The IA Design Philosophy

The staff of Illumination Arts understands that collaboration is the most successful route to a project that satisfies the needs of the owner, the end users and the design team. The Illumination Arts approach is simple: to listen to the client, understand the aesthetic and functional goals of a project and to work with the client and the entire design team to help achieve those goals in the most appropriate, aesthetic, energy-efficient and cost-effective manner. Our measure of success is when a project achieves those goals as beautifully and successfully on its first, second or fifth anniversary as it did on opening day.

Lighting and Maintenance

A beautiful architectural experience and effective visual solutions are only two goals for a successful lighting design. For the design to meet all of the owner's needs, the team must also take into account capital and operating costs, ease of maintenance and energy efficiency. At a criminal justice facility, this includes the practical considerations of vandalism and suicide, and requires the selection of appropriate luminaires. Illumination Arts firmly believes that attention to these operational issues is the key to achieving a lighting design that is effective over the long term and assures that the facility maintains its relevance.

Lighting and Sustainability

At Illumination Arts, energy and environmental considerations are an integral part of the design process. Whether your project is pursuing Net Zero Energy consumption, LEED certification or just responsible citizenship in the built environment, Illumination Arts can ensure that our lighting design not only addresses the architectural and visual requirements of your project, but also your energy and operating costs over the long term. In addition, as they have done on numerous projects, Illumination Arts can recommend ways in which to most effectively use electric lighting and daylighting to minimize your carbon footprint while providing an effective and appropriate visual experience for everyone in your facility.

Why Illumination Arts?

West L.A. Courthouse

Illumination Arts has a depth of experience that can ensure the long-term beauty, effectiveness, and viability of your lighting system.

- Illumination Arts has designed the lighting for police stations, courthouses and detention areas and understands the necessary balance of security and dignity required for such buildings.
- Many criminal justice structures are historic buildings that require both sensitivity to conservation issues and lighting for a 21st century facility.
- Illumination Arts understand that visual and architectural needs vary for the different populations within a criminal justice facility and have the creativity and expertise to address these differences, all while minimizing energy and maintenance costs.
